

Cotemar obtains the Achilles Certification for the sixth consecutive year

November 16, 2021

Mexico City, Mexico.- Cotemar announced today that it has obtained the Achilles Certification for the sixth consecutive year, an essential requirement to participate in strategic projects with Pemex.

By auditing areas such as corporate responsibility, health and safety, quality and management, environment, and human resources, the Achilles Certification validates that Cotemar follows the standards established by the Supplier Information Management Community for the South American Oil and Gas Industry (Siclar). Therefore, it assures that Cotemar adheres to domestic and international performance and risk management standards of the oil industry supply chain.

“We are a world-class company that operates under the highest ethical performance standards. The fact that we compete in a quality and services framework means that our operations are backed by the strictest domestic and international certifications in the market,” said an internal source of Cotemar.

The Achilles Certification, a requirement to work with Pemex, is a supplier pre-qualification system designed to help manage the risks in its supply chains while ensuring that its suppliers comply with its legal requirements and its humanitarian and environmental standards.

As the Achilles certification requirements become stricter every year, Cotemar has been recognized for its outstanding performance among the audited companies.

Cotemar, with its long history spanning more than four decades, renews its commitment to fully optimize the performance of its operations and services using cutting-edge technology and applying high domestic and international standards that will ensure the quality and safety of the projects in which it engages.
